The product

Flos Olei 2018 - a guide to the world of extra virgin olive oil is the first Guide dealing on an international scale with oil farms all over the world and extra virgin olive oil, strictly selected by a panel of expert tasters coordinated by Marco Oreggia, editor and publisher of the volume, together with Laura Marinelli. The guide, written in two languages (Italian-English), consists of a detailed presentation of the olive growing sector in 50 countries and is going to be further developed: from Europe to the Mediterranean world and the overseas countries. It is based on a national and only for Spain and Italy regional division of the whole olive growing sector, supplying historical and cultural information, production data, typical varieties and areas protected by names of origin.

The detailed cartography includes both the best olive areas and the ones protected by names of origin. Moreover every farm is described in a card with notes about oil tasting and gastronomic matches. In the existing publishing industry the guide aims at representing a new and stimulating product in the delicate sector of olive growing and is therefore written as an effective, modern and universal means of information. Thanks to the careful and quality work behind it the guide will be a point of reference for all consumers interested in good food and for national and international workers of the sector.

Topics

It is a group work, edited by Marco Oreggia, journalist, food-and-wine critic and expert taster, and by Laura Marinelli, journalist and expert taster.

Important national and international olive oil experts and a panel of expert tasters, coordinated by the editor, have also contributed to the realization of the guide.
